

Britain Rebuilds

DAMAGE DONE TO HISTORIC BUILDINGS in all the countries involved is one of the many tragic features of war. Most regrettable, of course, is the death and disability caused by conflict, but the destruction of buildings of historic interest and architectural beauty, which cannot be replaced is a loss to people of the present and of future generations. To the people of Gleichen the loss of the House of Commons by German bombs in 1941 occasioned the loss of a building associated with many historical events and rich in the tradition of the past. In this, as in the case of many other historic buildings destroyed during the war, little time was lost in commencing to rebuild.

Report Given On Progress

In May, 1947, work was commenced on the new House of Commons, and a recent report on the progress which is being made was given by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, the architect. While the old structure cannot be copied, it is apparent that the new will be ready to receive its members of next year will have much of the charm of the original structure, with some features representative of the times in which it is being rebuilt. One of these features is the archway from the Chamber to the Lobby, which is being named the Churchill arch in honor of the great wartime "leader of the government." It will be built partly of new stone, and partly of stones from the original building.

Wood Is Sent From Canada

From many parts of the Commonwealth, valuable materials are being sent to complete the Chamber. A chair sent from Canada, as well as a white oak table, the speaker's chair, the black beam timber from North Queensland, Australia, is to be an exact replica of the original structure. Gifts have also come from South Africa, British Guiana, Northern Ireland, the Fiji Islands and many other parts of the Commonwealth. In addition to a replica of the old one, but it will also contain evidences of the relationships between the various members of the Commonwealth and objects of beauty representative of the times in which it is being rebuilt.

FUNNY AND OTHERWISE

"Good gracious, how terrible!" exclaimed the professor as he finished reading the note left behind by his daughter who had run away.

"What ever is the matter dear?" asked his wife, concerned at his sudden distress.

For answer, the professor handed her the letter to read.

"So she's eloped with that nice-looking young fellow in the lady's calm comment?" "Well I can't say it quite unexpected."

"But she put 'eloped' with two 'y' instead of 'eloped' with two 'e's, of learning."

"Please sir," said the small boy nervously, "I'm sorry to intrude, but I ought to be punished for something I haven't done?"

"Of course not," said the master.

"Please, sir," said the small boy with a sigh of relief, "I haven't done my homework."

The master was pleased.

"I forgot to put a stamp on that letter, Jane. I hope you didn't post it without me."

"I'm sorry, I thought you were economizing."

"I've taken three lessons in French."

"Could you carry on a conversation with a Frenchman?"

"I'm afraid not, but I could talk to anybody else who had had three lessons."

"And what is a synonym, Will?" asked the teacher.

"A synonym," said Will, "is a word that means the same thing, you can't spell the other one."

"I'm looking for my husband," said the customer to the shopkeeper. "I said I would meet him here an hour ago."

"What is he like?" asked the shopkeeper.

"He's fair, and — but he'll be purple by now," was the reply.

THE MINE DINTS:

"Don't get too close to the car ahead of you on the highway, Remmy," your mother says to the driver. "You know nothing about him, yet you are putting your life in his hands if he doesn't stop for you."

If someone is tailing you, slow up gradually so as to pass you.

If you are following a friend in another car or are in a group of cars in line, leave enough room between your car and the one in front so you can get out of it in necessary.

2. Don't underestimate tires for an ordinary ride. Under normal car speeds, 60 per cent of the blowouts occur at the rear.

3. Don't pull up close to the lower gates at a railroad crossing. You may be hit by a train from behind and push you into the path of the train.

4. Don't open the garage door to a car in motion. This requires too much gas. Get a light, preferably of the non-flame type.

7. Don't light a match or smoke in a garage or filling station.

8. Don't leave your motor running in a garage first, checking to see if there is any oil leaking.

9. Don't fall to keep the metal hose firmly in contact with the tank filler spout on your car, if you must handle the gasoline hose.

10. Don't sit in your car and drink from behind and push you into the path of the train.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE MAN IN MY LIFE ::

By Louis Arthur Cunningham

The Shaw sisters were exactly the kind of girls for miles around Fortcroft. They married young and well—rich men who gave them castles and furs—all except Leslie, cast the victim of the courtship. Leslie turned down a half dozen offers, waited until Brad Connor came home from the war and married him the week after and went with him to the old Connor Farm, high on Mt. Hope, out of the world away by the way from Fortcroft. Everybody said how foolish she was. The three other Shawins, in their penthouse on the hill, could not help but smile at her offense. Lola! the eldest, a redhead with eyes green as emeralds and just as hard, commented at Leslie, "Don't be silly. This is the first time you're letting yourself in for when you marry Brad and go off to that eagle's eyrie. I mean, I know he's a good guy—sort of serious, steady, and you won't want for anything as long as he can milk a cow or haul a plow, but there's nothing more in life."

"Brad?" Leslie said simply, "is what I want."

"Name?" asked Lola.

"Oh, it's Leslie," she shook her head. "That's something you can't name, Lolie."

"We're hopeless. And I wish you wouldn't call me Lolie—Ed doesn't like it."

Lolie smiled. She had been through this so often. With Sam who had a yacht named after her by adoring Marvin Grant, who was bald but nice; with Beth, who owned horses and had a pony named after her by Pete Somers, who had lots of hair but was nasty.

Lolie had sat quiet off to the little church where, as children, they had sung in the choir, prepared to read the hymnals, and there had been by old Mr. Ross on Ross who had baptised them both. Then they went to the farm on the hill, where the old house had come with gifts—rich things that seemed garish among the old furniture.

Now Ed sat right in that rocker, stamped his foot, and scolded his bar when he chucked in the fern and Brad never sits in that chrome chair we've got."

"I don't see how she can stand it," agreed Sam. "The place is like Wuthering Heights."

"Leslie's got fed up soon," said Beth. "Cooking, washing, mending, even painting the walls herself."

"She'll take it all so nicely, Ed," said Lola. "I mean, she's got her pipe and grannie, and she's got her pipe and the time she doesn't even talk to her."

"And she hasn't even got a radio," said Lola.

"Radio?" Both shuddered. "They haven't even got electricity!"

"I heard Brad says he's buying a power-unit with some of his gratuity."

"Well, when he does well give 'em a radio," said Sam. "We'll all have a party."

They fixed the party for a night no one else could go to, and their bickering souls were moved. Ed stopped the car the lookout and said,

"What a night! Marvelous, man! You feel like a god, and I do so poor full and quiet up here. Maybe those

"Every Man Has His Own Place And His Own Women."

The lights of the old house twinkled among the trees and daylight shone out when Leslie and Brad came to the door. The men carried the radio.

"It's a durno," grunted Pete Somers.

"He's an able guy, Connor. He gave me the idea he knows where he's going and what he's after."

"Both of you. I don't know what Leslie sees in him."

"Once the glamour of first love was over, she was gaunt. Marvin was already asleep, his shiny head on her shoulder.

FRENCH FARMERS ARE BATTLING COLORADO BEETLE MENACE

One of the many hazards that face the farmers is the Colorado beetle which has broken out. One of the methods used to keep cool in warm weather.

That's the opinion of Dr. R. G. MacLean, of the Health and Welfare Department's Civil Service Health Division. He said in an interview he was heartily in favor of speedily dressed, shorts and no stockings.

"Clothing should be light and as non-constrictive as possible and worn to fit that other," he said.

Vortex Plot and Field Days

Farmers and others are always interested in new varieties test plots and new seedsmen who have them that they have never seen before. Because of the interest many grain buyers of Canadian and American grain elevators farm service have cared for over 1,800 of these plots as a community service during the past nine years.

Purpose. These plots provide an excellent means for farmers, grain buyers, millers, oil companies and others to become acquainted with the performance of varieties old and new, and their adaptability to local conditions. Furthermore, there have been many changes in the officially recommended varieties in recent years. Many of those grown on farms today were unknown 10 years ago. Fortunately, the changes have mostly been for the better. From these plots have come one means of keeping up-to-date.

Recent "Field Days," Crop production in Canada owes much to the plant breeder. Certainly the great cereal crops we practice today could not have been developed, almost entirely from varieties developed and improved by Canadian plant breeders. We can look forward with confidence in the future of plant breeding will continue to prove the solution to many of our most important crop problems.

Field Days. A common summer feature of the Canadian extension work is the "Field Day" where new farm practices, new crop varieties and new research findings are seen by and explained to farmers. Successful farmers know that any time spent at an Extension Farm Field Day or Research or Variety Plot is well worth the effort. The greatest benefit is derived from variety plots. It is a good idea to organize with a crop specialist present to discuss the merits and failings of the different varieties. •

Town & District

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Deshayes left on Friday for the Pacific Coast for a holiday. They expect to be gone for about ten days.

Stan Haskayne who was accompanied by his brother and nephew Dickie Haskayne has returned from a long day trip to the Pacific. The boys report having had the time of their lives.

The Gleichen Pharmacy was broken into one evening last week and a number of articles stolen such as alcohol, tobacco, stationery and tea crates. The police arrested three Indian boys all under 15 years of age one of whom was found fast asleep in the middle of a pasture. Entry was made into the store by the coal chute.

Miss Elizabeth of Castle River, Saskatchewan, who is holding a baby sister here, Mrs. Freggat, is a present in Calgary visiting Miss Joyce McQueen.

Miss Frieda Woods has returned from Victoria, B.C. when she spent her holidays visiting her sister, Mrs. R. Barrett. Miss Woods reports that Mrs. Hoey, formerly of Gleichen, who has been confined to the Kimberley Hospital for some time is seriously ill.

The other day we received a card from David McBain stating he and Mrs. McBain had been in Scotland safely having made the trip in 24 hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bates have today for an extended auto trip and holiday in the mountains. They are heading directly for Kimberley where they will be the guests of Hugh Bates for a day

THE STRANGE AND TRAGIC PARADOX OF CHINA

The most populous nation on earth is being won for dictatorship, won by men the dictators have sought to fight so zealously. What they have sought is "peace, reform and democracy." After every advance or retreat, communist forces gather and go over every cause of failure or success as zealously as a wild dragoonish bandit goes over victories and reverses in an all out try for championship. Why? Because Moscow-trained men have fired their arms with a big idea.

Their followers, of course, are docile communists. In fact, the Chinese democracy has become a political state like every other Soviet satellite. The leaders know this. But they are so fired by the idea of the ultimate gains resulting from their policies that they believe that they are able to fire millions of others with their own enthusiasm.

Today most thinking people realize that there is more tragedy in store for the Chinese than any that has been known in their eyes about China. By infiltrators in all our agencies and institutions disseminating information. And many believe it is not too far to come to the conclusion that the Chinese Communists are not acting in the most efficient way. We have trained many Chinese students in our institutions. We have sent many missions to China—educational and diplomatic, economic, cultural, intelligence, medical and military. But somehow we have not given China the evidence that wins them to democracy and creates a zeal to fight for it; the ability to bring economic and political order to their country; the tools with which to build integrity out of corruption, endemic dealing out of black markets, and armies that can-
